The Alcan administration building located at the Kitimat smelter. The decisions to buy $60 million worth of Japanese technology were made in this building by key personnel.

At Kitimat

Alcan changes result of study

by Scott Browne

One of the major reasons why the Alcan Kitimat smelter is to get Japanese technology aimed at improving productivity and working environment is "as a result of the findings of the McGill University health study released in March 1977 which showed some increase in risk of contracting lung cancer after 21.3 years of exposure to tar fumes in the potlines of AS and C (Alcan Smelters and Chemicals), eastern smelter in Arvida Quebec," says Alcan public relations manager Brian Hemingway.

Technology is being bought from Sumitomo and NKK (an Alcan affiliate), of Japan which will "hopefully save up to 15 percent of the energy now used and increase productivity significantly," said Hemingway.

Dr. E.L. Cambridge is the manager in charge of the division of the smelter which the new technology will most effect. Dr. Cambridge explains that the first phase of the project is the installation of the new technology in 25 pots, electrolytic cells, changing them from the traditional method to the new Japanese method. This project is estimated to cost $9 million plus.

"There is no way to estimate any change in the size of the workforce at this time but no change is expected," said Cambridge.

This first phase is planned to be completed by late 1979 and is seen by company officials as a demonstration, rather than a test.

"The demonstration is for setting up of training packages and operating procedures," says Cambridge.

What are the actual changes the technology will bring? Details could not be released by the officials due to a binding agreement, but generally speaking the two officials said that a change in anode materials and some operating practices constitute the acquired technology.

Kitimat is the only vertical anode stud plant owned by AS and C in Canada, this is why only Kitimat is to receive the new technology which is specifically designed for vertical anode stud electrolytic cells.

Some basic operating practices will change. "A re-orientation of the workers will be part of the training program," explained Cambridge. The training will be for all potroom workers who must adjust to the new pots.

Workers will not be more specialized in their duties, assured Hemingway, "just have different jobs centering around monitoring the cells."

Maintenance of the pots will still be required, as is now.

The smelter presently holds two development lines of pots, about 140 cells, part of which will be the demonstration area. These new pots will not look any different to the untrained eye, according to Cambridge. Two changes that will be visual are crane and crucible modifications.

The existing cranes run along each potroom doing heavy jobs with a cab about 40 feet above the floor. The new cranes will be a gondola type, with the cab suspended lower to the floor which will allow for greater maneuverability. Crucible breakers will have new duties.

Emissions are a priority to the workers in the smelter. The internal environment of the potrooms has caused the company to institute the wearing of protective dust masks but is expected to be discontinued with the new technology. "The new pots will bring working environment tar exposure levels down to below government established levels. This should remove the necessity for protective masks," according to Cambridge. This is seen as the long-term solution to working environment problems, according to Cambridge.

The company has committed itself to 25 new pots plus one building, about 70 pots, to be equipped with the new technology.

In its entirety the project of changing all 900 cells over to the Japanese method, contingent upon demonstration results, is estimated to run at $60 million but must first be debugged during demonstration.

The company is hoping to have a reciprocal exchange of technical personnel with the Japanese firms during the demonstration stages of instituting the new pots.

June 2 was the date when the official decision to purchase the Japanese methods was made, but "this has been an ongoing project of investigation for the last two years," explained Cambridge.

The plant now has a modernization program updating stud maintenance, lighting, and building ventilation, as well as other aspects of the plant which are becoming antiquated which will continue with the new methods. Institution of the new technology will begin after the details are received from Japan, within a month Hemingway estimates, and engineering plans are completed.

CNR off Do Rails

SMITHERS, B.C. (CP) — The Canadian National Railway line between Prince George and Prince Rupert was re-opened to traffic early today after three derailments in as many days forced a temporary closure, CNR officials said.

Officials reported a grain car derailed Wednesday in a tunnel near New Hazelton and Thursday two grain cars and two cabooses were derailed near Telkwa.

The latest derailment, involving 29 cars, occurred Friday about 15 kilometres west of Houston.

2 die when truck burns

SMITHERS, B.C. (CP) — Two persons died early today when the semi-trailer truck in which they were riding overturned and burned about five kilometres east of this west-central community.

Names of the victims were not released.

Hiker dies

KEREMEOS, B.C. (CP) — Scott Atkinson, 20, of 1109 Highland Drive West Vancouver, a student of Canadian Outward Bound Mountain School, collapsed and died Saturday while on an organized hike.

Youth drowns in Diana Lake

Sixteen year old Jeffrey Warner, of Prince Rupert, drowned while attending a party at Diana Lake, near Prince Rupert, on Friday, June 2. He was reported missing by friends who had observed him swimming into the lake and disappear, according to Prince Rupert RCMP. His body was recovered by divers at 8 a.m. Saturday, after police and Rescue 15 personnel had been called in at 11:50 p.m., Friday night.

Jeffrey was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Warner, of Prince Rupert.

Kitimat

RCMP Report

Eurocan Pulp and Paper company in Kitimat reported a small fire occurring at their plant on Saturday at about 9:45 p.m.

The blaze was apparently caused by a hot steam pipe which is adjacent to hog fuel bins and South East wall 2X3's. The flammable materials were within close range, according to Eurocan fire chief G. White.

Damage of the blaze was estimated at $50.

Kitimat RCMP report a digital watch found in the Kildala neighbourhood, owner may claim at the Public Safety Building.

Also turned in at the police station were: a pair of blue jeans, a beige pull-over TeeShirt, a pair of size four Six Million Dollar Man sneakers and a small amount of money. All items were found near Haisla bridge. Owner(s) may claim at the "Public Safety Building."

A false-alarm fire was reported on Saturday night. The Kitimat fire department would like stress that not only are false alarms costly to the municipality but they are dangerous. If a real fire was burning while fire personnel attend a false alarm the result could be catastrophe.

Milfoil study

VICTORIA (CP) — The ministry of environment has appointed two biologists to carry out a survey of lakes in British Columbia to document the spread of the Eurasian milfoil weed a spokesman said today.

A recent survey of 200 lakes showed that milfoil has spread to Magic Lake on Pender Island, numerous ponds in the Greater Vancouver area and is threatening Centennial beach in Delta, the spokesman said.

He said the survey, which will include most lakes in the province, will take most of the summer to complete. If it is found the weed is spreading, more money will be spent next year to combat the problem, he said.

The sun shone bright upon the crowd and competitors Saturday and Sunday during the Loggers Sports Days events. Pictures and results inside.

Salmon Derby "Surprise"

HAINES, Alaska (AP) — This community's annual salmon derby was one of the best ever until their Canadian neighbors were tossed out.

The Canadians, who come from just across the border in the Yukon Territory and British Columbia, were ordered out of the derby as a result of the termination of a United States-Canadian fishing treaty.

"My God, they're our neighbors," said Dave Olerud, chairman of the derby. "The damage created internationally, probably wasn't as serious as the damage created locally."

Wendy Hyde, a city hall spokeswoman, said "this is terrible for Haines since the Canadians make up most of the tourists in the city."

The U.S. Coast Guard said that from 150 to 200 Canadians had been participating until they were evicted on the last day of the event.

Olerud said the derby had been "fantastic this year. The fish were superior. The largest was 52 pounds." The winner got $1,000.

He said the Coast Guard posted a notice at noon Sunday ordering "foreign bottoms out of the water." The Canadians were agreeable and no strong action was taken.

The community of 463 persons is located 120 kilometres north of Juneau and about 26 kilometres from the B.C. border. The Alaska state ferry system links up with a loop of the Alaska Highway here.

"The situation causes some serious repercussions for Haines since we are so close to the border," said Olerud.

Canada and the U.S. authorized their coast guards to arrest fishermen from each other's country at noon Monday after a 24-hour grace period elapsed.

The grace period was intended to allow fishermen time to "understand the rules," said a Coast Guard spokesman in Juneau.

Weather:

Continued
hot today.

For at least fifty miles Highway 16 between Terrace and Prince Rupert, telephone poles have been cut down, apparently with a saw and placed parallel to the road on the shoulder overlooking the Skeena river. Unsecured as they are, some of the logs have moved and are in a dangerous position close to the road where they could pose a threat to drivers having to swerve onto the shoulder to avoid oncoming traffic.

Employees at the local Pacific Northern Gas building put up picket lines Monday morning at 8:15 following last week's strike action by workers in Vancouver. Employees of the company have been represented by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) since May, 1977, and have been attempting to finalize a first agreement since that date, until negotiations broke down. A spokesman for the union said the next step will be to negotiate with individual customers of PNG asking them to convert to alternate fuel sources rather than gas. "That will reduce consumption of natural gas drastically," the spokesman said.

READ ANY GOOD LABELS LATELY?

A basic guide to the Who, What, Where, When and Why of Shopping Canadian.

Why should you Shop Canadian?

Every time you buy something made in Canada, you help keep a Canadian working. You help keep Canadian money inside Canada. You help to expand and strengthen Canada's economy.

When you think about it, you help yourself.

When should you Shop Canadian?

Whenever you're satisfied that the product or service you need is

- (A) made or grown in Canada and
- (B) of equal or better value and quality.

That's not just good advice... it's good sense.

What is made in Canada?

Just about everything you need to help you live the life you want.

As the saying goes, we have no bananas, but we do have Apples, Bandages, Cranes, Drills, Elevators, Furniture, Glassware, Holiday resorts, Insulation, Jewellery, Kitchen appliances, Lumber, Machinery, Newspapers, Office equipment, Potatoes, Quilts, Rope, Steel, Tires, Umbrellas, Vaccines, Wines, X-Ray equipment, Yarns, and Zippers.

Everything, in other words, from A to Z.

Who should Shop Canadian?

Every day, most of us have the choice. Whether we're buying groceries for the home or supplies for business, farm or industry.

If each of us added only $10 a week to Canadian made purchases, Canada would be over 10 billion dollars better off in just one year.

Who should Shop Canadian?
You should.

Where does it say Made in Canada?

Sometimes it doesn't. Sometimes a sign says "Produce of P.E.I." Or "B.C. Apples" or "Fabriqué au Québec" or "Made in Manitoba" or "New Brunswick Sardines" or "Grown by Saskatchewan Farmers" or "A product of Alberta" or "Fresh from Newfoundland" or "Manufactured in Ontario" or "Nova Scotia Lobster."

The point is, if you take the trouble to find out, you can usually tell.

And, if it's made anywhere in the ten Provinces or the Territories, it is made in Canada.

This ad was made in Canada. Making this ad employed (for a period of time) a writer, an art director, an account executive, a media buyer, a media planner, a typesetter, an engraver, a platemaker, a traffic operator, several switchboard operators, various mailmen, shippers and secretaries, publication reps, publication make-up people, not to mention all their various suppliers.

Everyone of these people lives and works in Canada.

VERSATILE.

Logger's sports: Are we "Missing the boat"?

It had everything going for it. The brightest of blue, clear skies. The best of weather. An excellent location. Lots of parking space. Excitement, variety - and no other major event competing for the public's attention at the same time.

It was the 18th. Annual Loggers Sports event held over the weekend of June 3rd. and 4th. at Lions Park, in Thornhill.

But where were the crowds? Back in 1961 and 1962 - when the population of Terrace and Thornhill was but a fraction of what it is, today, close to three thousand persons turned out. This year (and last year) no one wanted to hazard a guess at the low attendance figures. A few hundred, perhaps?

It seems almost a case of the old story. Everything was done right - but somehow, nobody seemed to notice.

Judging by past writeups of the Annual Loggers Sports fairs, back in 1973 the even was the main attraction of the Summer - with traffic tie-ups as cars choked the approaches to the park, filled with excited spectators anxious to get there.

But, in any case, it is clearly evident, that after the attendance of approximately three thousand during the early sixties, the Loggers Sports Fair in the Terrace and Thornhill district has never reached the figures one might expect. Why?

The sponsors certainly are not to be faulted. Lots of hard - sometimes "dirty" - work is cheerfully undertaken. Setting up the equipment and getting the grounds ready is "Mans' Work" - and hard work. Invitations, advertising, registration, arranging the prizes, judging, - all this has to be done - and has been done - cheerfully, year after year.

Yet it is doubtful if last weekend's Loggers Sports Fair even covered expenses.

One suggestion has been made. School busses are idle over the weekend. One can see perhaps a dozen or more lined up, neatly, along highway 16 as one passes through Terrace. Could arrangements be somehow made for them to be laid on to provide free transportation for people and the area and the outlying districts to attend the Loggers Sports fair?

And how about CN "VIA Rail" excursions from both east and west, with busses to meet the trains?

Logging has traditionally been considered one of the most colourful, dangerous - and thus thrilling lifestyles because of its hazardous nature, appealing to the imagination of both young and old.

This community has (if we may be pardoned for mixing metaphors) a "gold mine" in its Loggers Sports fair, - all it needs is to know how to exploit it.

May we suggest just a few more ideas the committee might consider to help promote next years' event:

Selling "Wooden Nickels" commemorating the event, at a dollar each (inflation, of course, but they could be the size of silver dollars!) They could be advertised "Good for face value (5 cents) at any store in town during the event.)

Or how about selling "plugged nickels" - facsimile nickels with holes in them with wooden plugs inserted?

Arranging with Comox Air Base (or DND) for a Fly Past of Air Force Jets - contrasting the new with the old?

And why not arrange with major logging equipment manufacturers to display their latest logging equipment - not only from Canada, but the U.S., USSR, Sweden, India and other countries. This could be arranged through our Canadian Trade embassies, and federal department of Trade and Commerce.

Without doubt, the National Film Board would be willing to produce a documentary film free of charge, on Loggers Sports, using film clips from its archives of logging in the pioneer days. These clips could be incorporated into a "promo" film that could be distributed to theatres across Canada and through its trade commissioners, in theatres overseas.

Air Canada ("Canada's Air Line") could be approached to offer special package tours and flights for spectators and contestants from across Canada and overseas.

The potential and the possibilities appear virtually unlimited.

Yes, Terrace and Kitimat and district - Thornhill and the Lions have something really big going for them, if only the public could get behind and support it.

Something like having a Tiger by the tail...or should we say, - a Lion??

Men, Muscles, and Mighty deeds - plus music - all these, and bright sunshine and fine weather were there, at the-

18th. Annual Loggers Festival at Lions Park, Thornhill, Saturday any... but where were the crowds? Left to Right: Andy Lambert during the underhand chop, Nick Palagian, throwing the axe, Terrace Pipe and Drum, piping and drumming, and Jack Brownjohn doing a standing block chop.

Salmonid hatchery at Bella Coola

POWELL RIVER - One of the first major chum salmon hatcheries in the Salmonid Enhancement Program for British Columbia is to be located on the Bella Coola River system. This announcement was made by Jack Pearsall, Liberal Member of Parliament for Coast Chilcotin, on behalf of Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

The hatchery to be constructed at Snootli Creek and four sites on the Bella Coola River tributaries, would be similar to the hatcheries used in Japan to successfully enhance chum salmon stocks. The Japanese style of hatchery, which differs in some respects from the usual North American hatchery, is used to raise chum salmon. In the normal course of their development, the chums migrate to sea immediately after hatching, but in the Japanese hatchery, the chum fry are fed for thirty days before release. This system increases the young to adult survival rate. Part of a $150 million five-year program to enhance all salmonids on the west coast, these hatchery facilities will total $1,050,000 in capital costs. Calls for tenders for work on this project will be made by the Pacific Region of the Fisheries and Marine Service.

The first phase of the construction program will commence in 1978-79 at Snootli Creek site. The second phase of the construction program commencing in 1979-80 will consist of constructing rearing ponds for two million chum fry; a surface water supply system; diversion fence and holding ponds at each of the following sites - Salmon River, Fish Creek, Thorsen Creek and Bella Coola Slough. At full capacity the 7,200,000 chum fry produced from the hatcheries should result in about 100,800 adult chum salmon being harvested by the commercial fishery.

Mr. Pearsall remarked in making the announcement that the impact on both the construction industry and the harvesting and processing sectors of the commercial fishery shortly would be a major boon to employment in the area.

Think small

by Jim Smith

A Dirty Word

Unemployment has always been a dirty word. Lately, though, it's showing signs of becoming something even worse: a boring word. There's nothing like 12 months' of daily newspaper headlines to make most of us lose interest in an issue.

Actually, unemployment has not been treated fairly. We have, without exception, ignored the desirable effects of unemployment. For instance, unemployment has created many new jobs in Ottawa where bureaucrats must tabulate the unemployment rate and publish booklets about government programs which purport to fight the menace. Unemployment creates work for Canada Manpower personnel. And it creates work for newspaper reporters. If we didn't have unemployment, we conceivably could have more people out of work.

If you think that's ridiculous reasoning, you haven't encountered the most recent proposition from organized labour. More and more unions have studied the employment problem and reached the same conclusion: they will fight the shortage of jobs by reducing the work week for those individuals fortunate enough to be holding down jobs.

So far, so good. In fact, the willingness of workers to spread the discomfort equally over their ranks would appear to conform to the highest principles of unionism. But all is not as it appears.

To wit: the union proposal is not exactly to spread out the available work over more workers. Rather, the union sees every worker, putting in fewer hours for the same gross pay! Or, to put it another way, the employer is expected to pay a whole lot more for workers.

That isn't the best way to cure unemployment. The thinkers who dreamed up this scheme apparently overlooked the one fundamental rule of economics: when the price of something goes up, the demand for that thing goes down. In other words, if employers are expected to pay their workers higher hourly wages, they will employ even fewer workers.

Putting it all together, then, the union proposal would lead to more unemployment rather than helping out the unfortunate who are still looking for jobs.

But, then again, organized labour has shown a spectacular lack of understanding of existing economic conditions. All across Canada at this very instant, for example, teachers are conducting strikes or the more insidious "work to rule" campaigns, blithely ignoring the fact that the most pressing issue in education today is how to get rid of the surplus staff. The inside Post Office workers have demanded fringe benefits totalling slightly more than $1 billion on their next contract! And on and on...

Unemployment is a nasty business. Unfortunately, it appears that certain social groups are exploiting the issue and unemployment's victims. It's time to play fair with unemployment.

"Think small" is an editorial message from the Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

Editorials from the French-Canadian Press

Following is a selection of editorials on current topics translated by The Canadian Press from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal-Matin: While participating in a panel discussion on national security during a recent Quebec Bar Association conference, the distinguished American journalist Joseph Kraft said something to this effect: Politicians do not win popularity contests by standing up for individual freedoms over national security. On the contrary, they count on public indifference. However, the Quebec Bar devoted a morning workshop to this question while the Quebec Human Rights League dedicated the weekend to a conference entitled Police and Liberty.

The concept of national security, said Kraft, fluctuates at the mercy of the political situation in the country. In reflecting, one finds this highly logical but very disquieting. Because, finally, who is going to define state security...?

The observers who participated in this workshop at the bar conference may have been surprised that the lawyers did not raise more quickly a question which normally should have been their main concern in this domain: the gradual movement of federal legislation towards a "dejudicialization" of state powers. From a democratic perspective and in respect to rule of law, it would be desirable, indeed, that civil servants and police (as in the case of electronic surveillance) be controlled by the judiciary, which would not give away arbitrarily. Parliament could define the principles of national security; the police and civil servants apply them, whereas the courts would evaluate whether the powers had been properly exercised.

Now one is far from such a system. The notion of national security, left to the federal cabinet, gives it the choice to refuse citizenship without official reason. The Federal Court Act allows a minister, on presentation of an affidavit, to forbid a court to use a document which the minister may feel is injurious to Canadian international relations or to federal-provincial relations. The Official Secrets Act could itself be invoked, in relation to espionage, to convict an individual without having proven that the accused is guilty of a certain accusation. It suffices to base it on circumstances or on the character of the accused.

In opening the Human Rights League conference, James Petras, professor of political sociology at New York University, said the risk of encroachment on civil liberties grows larger in times of economic crisis and in tense political situations. The times that we live in and government panic do not help to reassure us. -Marc Laurendeau (May 29)

(May 29)
Trois-Rivières Le Nouvelliste: The Federation des Francophones hors Québec (FFHQ) has just published another shock document entitled Two Weights, Two Measures, which makes a comparison between the situation of francophones outside Québec and anglophones in Québec...

In presenting their document, the directors of the federation specified that in no way do they want to support a movement to restrict the rights of anglophones, but they want to indicate the road they have to travel in their own case. Moreover, it is to be noted that the document in question does not propose a plan of action with respect to one or the other minority...

The FFHQ document had been prepared to coincide with the federal election that should have been held at the beginning of the summer. Trudeau's decision to delay the general election took away much of the impact of this document which could have become a very important part of the election campaign. In the perspective of the national unity debate, dear to the Liberals...

For the moment, the FFHQ study will not fail to serve the interests of the Parti Québécois government in its referendum legislation. No one can argue that Québec treats its minority infinitely better than all the other provinces, and that despite Law 101, so decreed in English Canada. The federation's document contains absolutely indisputable evidence.

In other respects, to be realistic, a comparison of the kind reserved for the two minorities must necessarily take account of the historical context.

It is quite different to leave to someone the place which he occupies than to give someone the place that he deserves.

Since the Conquest, the anglophones of Québec held political and economic power. Since then, little by little, the francophone majority has succeeded in taking back political power and at least partial economic power. However, the anglophone minority intend to defend these acquired rights and not solely the privileges given them by the francophone majority.

The position of the francophones outside Québec is not the same. They have never actually held political and economic power. Today, nothing can be more legitimate than that they want to claim their fair share. It is high time that it is granted to them. -Sylvio Saint-Amant (May 27)

3 CN trains off B.C. track

SMITHERS, B.C. (CP) - The third Canadian National Railway freight train to derail in north-central British Columbia within three days left the tracks Friday near Endako, 140 kilometres southeast of here.

A CN spokesman said there were no injuries in the derailment of 29 grain cars. He said track damage was minimal and the rail line was expected to be cleared by late Friday.

Cause of the accident was investigation.

A company spokesman said earlier that expansion of rails caused by hot weather resulted in derailments Wednesday and Thursday.

Four cars of a CN freight train derailed Thursday at Telkwa, about 11 kilometres east of here, destroying about 225 metres of track. At New Hazelton, about 100 kilometres west of here, 10 cars of an 80-car CN freight train derailed Wednesday.

No injuries were reported in either incident.

Hydro stalls decision on Columbia project

INVERMERE, B.C. (CP) — British Columbia Hydro is still a long way from making any decision on the proposed controversial Columbia River diversion project, a spokesman for the Crown corporation told a weekend forum concerning the river Saturday.

Charles Nash, Hydro's general manager for corporate affairs, told 300 persons attending a two-day "celebration of the river" meeting that alternate diversion plans are possible. Nash said all aspects of the Columbia system now are being examined to determine the effects of any developments, and what changes would be acceptable.

The forum in this southeastern British Columbia community was sponsored by the Columbia River Watch, a United States-based environmental group concerned with the river.

DIVERSION PLANNED
Hydro proposes to divert a portion of the Kootenay River at Canal Flats. 45 kilometres south of here, into the Columbia River system to augment power production at its Mica and Revelstoke power dams on the Columbia.

The plan was criticized by Graham Kenyon of Rossland, a member of the B.C. Wildlife Federation's energy committee, who drew strong applause when he told a forum about the "passionate" local opposition to the diversion.

Kenyon said Hydro must resign itself to the kind of reaction it is getting from area residents. "Maybe Hydro should recognize this, pack their bags and go home," he said. "But they won't go home. They will go somewhere else."

D. C. Waterfield of Nakusp, B.C., told the meeting that if those against the proposal persist in their opposition "the Columbia Valley will not be spoiled." He said the best weapon against the plan was their votes at election time.

PLAN OPPOSED
Other audience members voiced strong opposition to the plan at a panel discussion headed by speakers from Hydro and wildlife federation members.

Critics of the Hydro plan contend that the diversion will threaten the $60-million-a-year tourist industry in the region by changing water levels.

They say it will decrease the amount of water going down the Kootenay River, increasing pollution in the river from the Crestbrook pulp mill at Skookumchuck, 56 kilometres south of here.

It also will decrease the amount of water entering the Libby Dam system near Libby, Mont., they said.

Critics also have said it would lower the temperature of nearby Lake Invermere and silt its waters, while area bird sanctuaries would be threatened by changed water levels.

The weekend forum also featured songs and slide presentations of the river and the effect the diversion might have on the environment.

Hunger strike in protest of junta

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rosa, who asked that her surname be withheld because of fear for relatives in Chile is among six Vancouver persons who haven't eaten for more than nine days as part of an international protest against Chile's military junta.

The group is demanding that the regime of General Augusto Pinochet, which took power in a coup in 1973, release information about 2,500 Chileans it says have disappeared in prisons since the coup.

The strike was begun in Santiago May 22 by 66 relatives of missing persons and has since generated world-wide support with about 200 people on strike in 10 Canadian cities.

"I feel weak," Rosa said, lying on a foam pad Sunday in a church. "But at the same time, I feel very strong, strong enough to continue this struggle."

Rosa said after her husband, a university student and known supporter of the deposed Salvador Allende, fled Chile, she spent a day in jail—held hostage by authorities trying to find her husband. She was released because she was pregnant.

After that, she said, her 18-year-old brother disappeared for two years, the time spent in two concentration camps. He was released in 1976 and is now in Canada.

Chile's Roman Catholic Cardinal has set a deadline for Pinochet to respond to the strikers' demands.

"The Church has a lot of power in Chile," Rosa said. "And our strike here is an important kind of support for the strikers in Chile."

At a meeting Friday, the strikers were supported by Vancouver Alderman Harry Rankin and British Columbia Federation of Labor President George Johnston. The Vancouver group has sent telegrams to Pinochet, the UN Secretary General and the federal external affairs department.

A demonstration is planned Tuesday at the Chilean consulate in Vancouver where a petition with more than 500 names is to be presented.

7 weekend deaths in province

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
A 10-year-old girl who died when a car plunged 180 metres down a hillside Saturday was among seven persons who died in accidents in British Columbia during the weekend, a Canadian Press survey shows.

Michelle Corbell, 10, of Kamloops was killed when the car in which she was riding left the Trans-Canada Highway at Matte's Mountain about 70 kilometres east of Kamloops and plunged down the embankment. Police said he body was found at the bottom of the hill.

Beatrice Arlene Corbell, 27, of Kamloops was in fair condition in hospital. Monique Leslie Allen, 10, of Kamloops was in fair condition in hospital.

Two unidentified Invermere residents died Saturday when their car collided with another about 10 kilometres southeast of Invermere.

A 25-year-old Chilliwack man was killed early Sunday in a single-vehicle accident on Likely Road, about 50 kilometres northeast of Williams Lake. His name was not released.

Lorraine Lillian Shaw, 15, of Chilliwack died early Sunday when she was struck by a car as she walked along the Columbia Valley highway south of Cullus Lake.

Police have not identified a man killed Sunday morning in a two-car head-on crash on Highway 97 near Duck Lake, about 22 kilometres north of Kelowna.

Ronald Ross Frame, 22, of Richmond drowned Saturday when the canoe he and a companion were fishing from overturned in Coquihalla Lake, 59 kilometres northeast of Hope. Police said the other man, managed to reach shore.

Sweethearts reunite

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leslie Pullen, 67, a happily-married father of six children, was reunited Sunday with Mrs. Margaret Haynes, 63—a sweetheart he's not seen for almost half a century.

Their reunion had the full approval of Leslie's wife and Margaret's husband.

Leslie's four daughters and three sons even contributed his air-fare here from England, where he now lives.

Margaret, who lives in Portland, Ore., and has a married son, said "I'd given up hope of ever seeing Les again. I recognized him immediately."

But there were no hugs and kisses—instead, a very reserved handshake.

"We were in public, I'll give him a hug later," laughed Margaret. "It's been a long time, and obviously things will be a little strained for a while."

"I'm so happy he's come. He looks pretty good, though we've both aged. He had a bit of trouble recognizing me—but then my hair is white now."

"I have no regrets that's he's here, nor have our own families—there's no heart-break for them. They know there is no question of a romance. We are both happily married."

"For goodness sake, Les and I aren't going to fall in love again. It's just going to be fun catching up on all each other's news."

In a telephone interview from Portland, Mrs. Haynes said they first met in 1930 at a Vancouver party while he was a sailor in the British Navy.

HAD ROMANCE

"It was quite a romantic story," she said. He left when the ship sailed a week later, but returned the following year, again for a week, she said.

"Then, three years later, he was back—on a freighter. This time he jumped ship and stayed in Vancouver for three months."

"We had a marvelous time together, but suddenly it was all over. His landlady turned him in and his company sent him home on another freighter." That was the last time they saw each other, although they have kept in touch with regular letters.

"We were engaged," said Margaret. "But in those days neither one of us could afford the trip to England or Canada. Circumstances and the depression changed the whole picture."

"When you are young you have to accept these things, but you always have that little something for a person. We always had a dream that we'd meet again. I guess we've been in each other's minds for years."

Leslie, is visiting for about three weeks before returning to his home in Portsmouth, England. "My desire to see Margaret has become an obsession over the years," he said. "I wanted to emigrate, but my wife wouldn't leave England."

In Portsmouth, his wife Vera said she was "delighted Les is making this trip." "I'm sure he will behave himself, and come back," she added.

CBC wins award for Nishga show

ELLENVILLE, N.Y. (CP) — The Canadian magazine, CBC British Columbia and CJAD Radio, Montreal, have been awarded annual Media Human Rights Awards for press, radio and television, the League for Human Rights of B'nai B'rith announced today.

The Canadian magazine was recognized for a report about the hazardous living conditions of native Canadians and the increasing death rate as a result of health and sanitary negligence. Reader's Digest of Canada participated in the development of the original story outline, shared the cost of the project, and later published a condensed version in its Canadian issue.

CBC-British Columbia received the award for The Nishgas: A Struggle for Survival, which depicted the legal and peaceful struggle of the Nishga Indians in British Columbia for the right to maintain their own identity and govern their tribal affairs.

CJAD Radio, Montreal, was awarded for its open-line program, Sounds Like Montreal, where a discussion on human rights issues is followed by public response.

The league says the awards were initiated in 1974 "to call public attention to the role played by the media in alerting, informing and sensitizing the public to the nature and value of human rights, their interdependence, one upon the other, and the ever-present danger of their erosion."

The awards were presented at a B'nai B'rith district convention.

Recordbreaking rollercoaster

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bruce Parker of Prince George, B.C., had trouble walking Saturday after setting a record at Playland of 351 consecutive rides on the rollercoaster.

The 21-year-old apprentice meatcutter wasn't sure whether his 15-hour marathon ride had set a world record.

His diet during the ride was half a grapefruit, a handful of grapes and a couple of glasses of water.

Parker had a number of sponsors and raised about $3,000 for the Canadian Paraplegic Association.

He also said he would do it again if his record here is broken. The previous Playland rollercoaster mark was 225 continuous rides.

Traffic transport concern Burnaby

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Residents of this municipality took their beefs to a New Democratic Party public caucus meeting Saturday making it clear their primary concerns are traffic routes and transportation.

The public meeting was one of a series the NDP caucus is holding throughout the province to learn about the concerns of citizens in various areas.

Chaired by MLA Karen Sanford of Coquitlam, the meeting was better attended by MLAs than the public. Sixteen NDP members showed up, including former premier Dave Barrett, but the public gallery consisted largely of those presenting briefs.

Burnaby Alderman Gerry Ast, asked by MLA Charles Barber of Victoria for his opinion of the newly-introduced Urban Transit Authority Act, expressed concern about the government paying its share of transit costs under the new arrangement.

"I hope I'm reading it wrong, but the feeling is there that it could be a move to bring an extra burden on municipalities," said Ast.

What a difference a price makes.

Prince George wins Kitimat exhibition play

by Anne Martindale

Kitimat teams won only the first and last games of an eight game lacrosse tournament which had four teams from Prince George and 24 players from Prince Rupert competing. The bantam and midget aged Prince Rupert players were placed on the Kitimat and Prince George teams to provide them with an opportunity to gain experience. Each out of town player received an envelope to commemorate the weekend. The association would like to thank those merchants who contributed: Alcan, Eurocan, District of Kitimat and the Bank of Commerce. Also the Kitimat Lacrosse Assoc. would like to thank all those people who worked so hard to make this tournament a success. Kitimat players are now looking forward to travelling to Prince George to compete in the July 1st tournament.

LATE FLASH: Winner of the seven pound Hershey chocolate bar raffled off by the Kitimat Minor Lacrosse Association was Niome Desousa of Kitimat.

LOAN BENEFITS BOTH TORONTO (CP) — Fifty-nine works of art have been loaned to the Art Gallery of Ontario by University of Toronto for a period of up to 10 years. In exchange, the gallery will restore the paintings, many of which have seriously deteriorated. Thirty-one of the paintings were exhibited by the gallery last November and now are on tour of Ontario.

West wins in CFL Stars pre-season battle

By GLENN COLE
CALGARY (CP) — It appears that the format for the Canadian Football League all-star game is acceptable, now they have to find the right time of year to play it.

It was obvious by the effort put forth Saturday night at McMahon Stadium that the contest probably should not be the kickoff to the pre-season schedule.

The Western Conference stars defeated the Eastern Conference stars 24-12 and neither team impressed offensively, although the defences did look all right.

"In the all-star game, it's going to be the defences that dominate," said cornerback Dickie Harris of Montreal-Alouettes. "The offences have such little time to throw things in there. They need a lot more time than defence. As a result, most games are low-scoring or dull in that way."

Not surprisingly, a defensive player was the No. 1 star in the game as cornerback Ray Odums of Calgary Stampede scored a pair of touchdowns — one on a 58-yard pass interception in the second quarter and the other on a 54-yard fumble recovery in the fourth quarter.

Dave Cutler of Edmonton Eskimos had two field goals, four singles and two converts to complete the scoring for the West.

GABRIEL SCORES
Tight end Tony Gabriel of Ottawa Rough Riders, caught a seven-yard touchdown pass from Toronto's Chuck Ealey with 3:13 remaining in the game to make the score respectable. Lawrie Skolrood of Hamilton Tiger-Cats had a twopoint conversion and placekicker Don Sweet of Montreal added a field goal and a convert.

Larry Tittle, an offensive lineman from Calgary, admitted that some of the players might have had mixed emotions playing in the all-star game.

"They may not have been as mentally prepared as they would for a regular game," he noted.

"It's the first game of the season and it's hard to get yourself prepared mentally," added quarterback Tom Clements of Ottawa, who split the East play directing duties with Ealey.

While there was general agreement the game was the first for the players and had something to do with the poor show, there was no solution to the problem of when to schedule it.

END OF SEASON IDEAL

"Ideally it should be after the season," said Calgary quarterback John Hufnagel, who directed the West of defence along with Winnipeg's Ralph Brock. "But you can't do that out here."

"I don't know. I have no ideas about it. I haven't really thought about it."

Harris thought the end of the season idea was not bad, but it was not feasible either because by time the Grey Cup game is over in late November, most of the United States-born players in the CFL have left for home.

A crowd of about 21,000 was on hand and cheered when the award to Odums was announced after the game.

Granville Liggins of Toronto was the East's top defensive player while the EFC's top offensive man was Brock Ansley of Montreal. Tom Scott of Edmonton was voted the West's best offensive man.

Scott had four catches for 57 of the 207 yards the West gained through the air. The West had only 61 yards rushing.

The East had 121 yards rushing and 150 passing with Aynsley making three grabs for 35 yards.

PCL squeak for Beavers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Portland Beavers have taught Tacoma Yankees the truth of the old saying that a miss is as good as a mile.

The Yankees got the message twice Sunday as the Beavers won a pair of squeakers over Tacoma, 6-5 and 5-4, in a Pacific Coast League baseball doubleheader.

The two victories brought Portland to within two games of first-place Tacoma in the Western Division.

In other games Sunday, Tucson Toros upended Albuquerque Dukes 7-4, Vancouver Canadians swept a doubleheader from Spokane Indians 2-0 and 6-5, San Jose Missions outlasted Phoenix Giants 4-3 in 10 innings and Hawaii Islanders topped Salt Lake City Gulls 4-2.

Alfredo Griffin stole third base and came home with the winning run for Portland on a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning of the first game.

Vancouver pitcher Craig Minetto held Spokane to three hits in the first game to post his seventh victory without a loss this season.

Soccer Cup play plagued by dope

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Willie Johnston, star of Scotland's World Cup soccer team, admitted Monday he had taken a forbidden drug and was sent home and banned from the Scottish team for life.

The Scottish Football Association announced the decision at Cordoba, where the Scottish team was staying.

A few minutes earlier, in Buenos Aires, Helmut Keyser, secretary general of the FIFA, the international soccer federation, said Scotland was liable to be disqualified from the tournament if the charges against Johnston were proved.

In 1974 in West Germany, Jean Joseph of the Haiti team was suspended from the rest of the tournament after a banned stimulant had shown up in a urine test. However, Haiti was not disqualified from the tournament.

The organizing committee of the World Cup still has to meet to decide what action, if any, to take against Scotland.

Two players from each team are selected by lot for a urine test after every World Cup match. Johnston and Kenny Dalglish were chosen from the Scottish team, which lost 3-1 to Peru.

A report on Johnston's sample was sent to the Scottish delegation at Cordoba at noon Sunday, World Cup officials said.

The Scots had 12 hours, under the rules, in which to request a second test on Johnston for counter-proof, but they did not use their right of appeal. After the time limit had expired, Keyser said Johnston had evidently taken a pill and committed "a flagrant violation" of World Cup rules.

Doctors attached to each of the 16 teams in the world are given a list of medicines which are banned under FIFA rules.

Sources close to the Scottish team said Johnston had been taking anti-histamine tablets for hay fever. But it was not clear whether this was what showed up in his urine test.

American League firsts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sunday was a day of firsts in American League baseball.

Jim Fregosi enjoyed his first win as manager of California Angels, pitcher Randy Stein got his first major league win for Milwaukee Brewer, Dick Davis hit his first major league, bases-loaded home run for the Brewers and Len Sakata got his first hit since April 29, also for Milwaukee.

"This felt 15 times better than I thought it would," said Fregosi after the Angels beat Boston Red Sox 4-2.

"I felt great," said Stein, the winning pitcher for Milwaukee in an opening-game 12-7 decision over Cleveland Indians.

"A home run, period, is a big deal for me because I'm a line drive hitter," said Davis whose homer was the key hit in the 12-7 win. "But a grand slam ... I was so excited I jumped when I got to first base."

"I hadn't really been doing anything wrong at the plate but I had been pressing," said Sakata who broke out of his slump in the Brewers' 9-5 nightcap win.

OAKLAND BEAT YANKS
Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's defeated New York Yankees 8-4, Baltimore

Orioles defeated Seattle Mariners 4-1, Kansas City Royals beat Chicago White Sox 13-2, Texas Rangers beat Toronto Blue Jays 9-5 and Detroit Tigers beat Minnesota Twins 6-4.

On Saturday, Toronto beat Texas 4-3, Minnesota defeated Detroit 9-2, Cleveland defeated Milwaukee 6-4, Oakland beat the Yankees 5-1, Chicago defeated Kansas City 9-5, Boston edged the Angels 5-4 and Baltimore beat Seattle 2-1.

The Angels' victory snapped a seven-game losing streak, but the Red Sox managed to break a streak of their own, finally scoring off pitcher Frank Tanana at Anaheim Stadium.

Tanana, 32, who surrendered two unearned runs to Boston in the ninth inning, got relief help from Dave LaRoche. Tanana, the AL's first nine-game winner, is 4-0 at home against the Red Sox and hasn't surrendered an earned run to Boston in 43 innings there.

Brewers 12-9 Indians 7-4 Stein, Davis and Sakata were an excited bunch of Brewers after contributing to the Milwaukee sweep of the Indians.

"The only problem I've ever had is trying to be too fine," said Stein.

Andretti steps-up push for Grand Prix

MADRID (CP) - Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., won the Spanish Grand Prix on Sunday for the second consecutive year and pulled further ahead in the world Formula 1 driving championship race.

His team-mate, Ronnie Peterson of Sweden, came in second in the other JPS-Lotus-the team's second one-two sweep in a row. The black-and-gold Lotus cars finished in the same positions in the Belgian Grand Prix for Formula 1 cars at Zolder two weeks ago.

Third in the incident-packed race was France's Jacques Laffite in the Ligier-Matra and fourth was South African Jody Scheckter in Montreal oilman Walter Wolf's newly-designed Wolf Ford.

Fifth place was taken by Britain's John Watson in the Brabham-Alfa, and sixth, a lap behind Andretti following a tire change, was former world champion James Hunt of Britain in a McLaren.

Carlos Reutemann of Argentina, driving the No. 1 Ferrari and expected to pose Andretti's most serious challenge Sunday, crashed on the 57th lap, overturning the car against a barrier. Reutemann walked away from the wreck uninjured.

He and Ferrari team-mate, Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., had tire trouble throughout the afternoon and were forced to make frequent pit stops. Villeneuve, a rookie on the GP circuit who picked up his first world championship points in the Belgian race, placed 10th Sunday, one lap behind the leaders.

Andretti, his newer Lotus 79 model on the pole, was outgunned at the start as Hunt blasted through from the second row. But the American took the lead back from Hunt on the sixth lap and drew steadily away as the rest of the field fought it out behind him in the torrid heat.

Andretti's time for the 75 laps 255.323 kilometres around Jarama's twisting circuit was one hour, 41 minutes, 47.06 seconds for an average speed of 150.523 kilometres an hour 93.531 m.p.h.

"I think now I could win the world championship," Andretti said following the victory. "Our next race is at Anderstorp in Sweden, and that's another track where our cars should have a big advantage." The low-slung Lotuses are designed to almost hug the road. World champion Niki Lauda of Austria had engine failure on the 56th lap. The victory gives Andretti 36 points in the race for the title of world driving champion. Peterson moved into second spot with 26 points.

Palmer to play Canadian championship in Vancouver August 15 to 20

The Canadian Professional Golfers Association and officials of Labatt's International Golf Classic announced today that Arnold Palmer, one of the greatest players in the history of the game, has accepted an invitation to play in the C.P.G.A. championship at Vancouver Shaughnessy Golf and Country Club, Aug.

Palmer, composing list of invitees and world P.G.A. champions who have already accepted invitations to the $100,000 event; under a revised format which will celebrate Labatt's 150th anniversary and their 12th consecutive year as a sponsor of the national championship.

"Palmer will be a tremendous addition to the field at Vancouver," said

David Zink, executive director of the C.P.G.A. "He lends something to any tournament in which he plays and almost ensures a successful gate for this event."

Tournament officials have already announced acceptance from five national champions to appear at Shaughnessy in what they hope will become a major fixture in international golf. Canada's George Knudson will defend the title he has won the past two years and this time he will have major challenges from international tour stars.

Top of the list was Argentine veteran, Roberto De Vicenzo, 10 time winner of the Argentine open and perennial champion in his country. He won the British open at Hoylake in 1967 and almost every other European open title at one time or another.

Another P.G.A. champions are, Patrick Cotton of the Club France near Paris, who holds the French championship; John Bland of South Africa and Simon Owen of New Zealand.

Zink was excited over the acceptance of Palmer, one of the greatest players in international golf, with a record of 61 victories on the U.S. tour, and an additional 18 foreign titles including the 1961 and 1962 British Opens and the 1955 Canadian Open.

The Childminding Centre

Don't believe what they tell you about immigration.

A lot of people have some pretty strange ideas about Canada's immigration law. And, as a result, a lot of people suffer from believing them.

The fact is, the most reliable information comes from us.

In other countries, we're in Canadian Government visa offices. Here at home, it's your Canada Immigration Centre.

If you know someone who'll have to pass through Canadian Immigration in the near future, you'd be doing them a favour by pointing them in our direction. Especially now that there's a new immigration law.

Now, the new law doesn't mean a lot of changes for the average immigrant or visitor.

Here, nevertheless, are a few things that might affect you or someone you know.

From now on, immigrants and those visitors who come here to work or study must make all immigration arrangements before arriving in Canada. No one may change his or her status while inside Canada.

Remember that money can't buy your way into Canada. All the help you need is free at any Canadian Government visa office or Canada Immigration Centre.

Canadian immigration officers do not discriminate on the grounds of colour, race or religion. Ever.

A new adjudication system gives greater protection to the civil rights of people involved in immigration proceedings. And deportation will no longer be the only possible penalty. There are now less drastic alternatives for minor infractions of immigration law.

The new law does not make immigration easier, but it does make it more predictable. If you need to know more, ask at a Canada Immigration

Centre. If you know someone abroad who needs information, tell them to contact their Canadian Government visa office before they make a move. That way, they'll know exactly where they stand when they step off the plane. ■

Rabbit test can give false reading

OTTAWA (CP) — The little ring didn't form at the bottom of the test tube. A relief: she's not pregnant. Probably not, anyway.

The Confidelle advertisement says the test she bought and performed herself at home is 95-per-cent accurate after the 12th day of a missed menstrual period.

In fact, the advertisement says, it can work as early as four days after a missed period if you do it correctly.

The company, as directed by the federal government, advises the user to see a doctor regardless of test results.

She should, said Irwin Hinberg, a clinical chemist with the Bureau of Medical Devices.

"It's a lot more difficult to do the test than you think the first time around," said Hinberg. "The instructions are simple but you may shake the tube while doing it."

The user can fudge the test if she shakes the tube of the Confidelle kit (the only do-it-yourself pregnancy-detection test currently on the market in Canada) more than once while waiting for test results.

MUST BE STATIONARY
The tube contains her urine, anti-serum and red blood cells coated with pregnancy hormone. It has to be left stationary for two hours before results are obtained.

A ring formation at the bottom of the tube indicates the likely presence of the pregnancy hormone (human chorionic gonadotropin). No ring means the woman is probably not pregnant.

A visit to the doctor will probably not cost the patient anything.

The test and visit will be covered under Ontario Health Insurance. The do-it-yourself kit, good for one try only, will cost about $6.

Hinberg conducted studies on the pregnancy tests used by hospitals and laboratories and on the take-home ones in 1976 after complaints from pharmacists, laboratories and doctors.

They were concerned about false positive readings from the presence of protein in urine samples and said manufacturers were occasionally recycling some of their lots, with the possibility of reducing the tests' accuracy.

RESULTS MISLEADING

"One of the problems was that protein in the urine specimen often gives a false result," said Hinberg. "It says the woman is pregnant when she is not and can lead to a false abortion."

He said many other variables may affect the reading of the tests.

Among these are drugs such as marijuana, methadone, antidepressants and aspirin if the latter is taken in large doses.

Hinberg said that the test loses some of its effectiveness if used as early as four days after a missed period. The advertisement makes no mention of how accurate the test is if performed that early.

Hinberg said tests done in labs are handled by professionals who know what to look for and are usually provided with controls to ensure the reactive substances in the test are still good.

The only problem with Confidelle, he said is user naivete.

"You can't tell them 'don't buy the test' because the test performs well," he said. "But there is always someone who will misunderstand."

George Finlay, president of Carter Products which manufactures Confidelle disagreed.

"I think it is a pretty simple test," he said. "I think it (the instructions) is very well delineated."

He said that in the last four to five years about 25,000 women a year have used the kits.

"Frankly we know we have a product that serves a need. It is, we think, quite accurate."

Musician works with blind

MONTREAL (CP) — Dwight Baldwin spends his evenings playing for the swingers at a downtown bar, but he doesn't let his nocturnal working schedule interfere with his twice-weekly, early-morning volunteer commitments to Michael Parker, 26, and 15 other blind students whom he has been teaching music since last September.

"Man, their ears are so good they are easier to teach than people who can see," said Baldwin. He said he is convinced Parker has the talent to join a professional group.

The blind students are residents of Panfield House, operated by the Montreal Association for the Blind, which recently marked its fifth anniversary.

Its program for young adults is unique in Canada, says John Simms, the association's director-general.

Some students attend junior college or university. Others receive orientation and mobility skills at the residence and vocational skills at nearby workshops.

Another group, which includes Parker, are multi-handicapped, retarded-blind. These students were without basic skills when they arrived. Most had been living with parents and were totally dependent on them.

At the residence they learned such skills as personal grooming, cooking—prepare a meal for 12—bowling and banking. Braille tags sewn on their clothing enable them to color-coordinate their wardrobes.

"One of our students couldn't speak when he arrived here," said residence counsellor Donna Woods, "but today he has a bank account and has mastered a number of skills which allow him to be more self-sufficient."

Another blind youngster volunteers at a home for the aged.

Bereaved Parents

MONTREAL (CP) — Bereaved parents, convinced that the depth of their emotion is too much for "outsiders" to grasp, are turning to others in the same plight for help.

Bereaved Parents is a group which is non-denominational with no membership fees or dues.

The first such group in Montreal was started recently by Zella Harris, a social worker who formerly worked at the Montreal Children's Hospital.

Mrs. Harris said she is convinced that leadership must come from within and she is optimistic that other groups, both English and French-speaking will spring up throughout the city.

John Pousette, of Terrace, is a summer student working with Dr. Victor Lepp through the provincial Youth Employment Program. A third year science student considering a career in the dentistry field, John will be working for four months in the orthodontic lab, taking and developing X-rays, making retainers and other orthodontic aids and assisting Dr. Lepp. Dr. Lepp created this summer job with the assistance of Youth Employment Program which encourages employers to create summer jobs by providing 50 per cent of the student's or youth's wages up to $4 per hour. For more information on the Youth Employment Program, contact Jean Holloway, field co-ordinator at the Ministry of Labour at 4548 Lakelse Avenue.

Car Tips By Totem Ford Owners Should Use Care When Boosting a Car Battery

What do you do when your car's battery suddenly conks out? Well, you get a set of jumper cables and connect your battery to one that's working (usually found in a neighbour's car). Then turn on your ignition and presto — your old battery has new life, at least long enough to get you to a garage.

Everyone knows how to do that, right? Wrong. According to a Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited official, most motorists don't know the importance of using jumper cables properly and safely.

T. Larry Johnson, national service manager, recommends the following six-step procedure for boosting the standard 12-volt, negative-ground battery found on most late-model cars:

One — Make certain your stalled car and the vehicle with the working (booster) battery are not touching. If the two vehicles are in contact, you might create an unwanted electrical circuit which could cause dangerous sparks when the booster cables are attached.

Two — Check to be sure that the booster battery also has a 12-volt capacity. The voltage is shown on the battery case. Batteries with a higher or lower voltage capacity should not be used to boost a standard 12-volt battery. (Domestic cars built prior to the mid-1950's, a few imported vehicles and some trucks do not use a 12-volt, negative-ground battery system.)

Three — Turn off all battery-operated accessories such as your headlights, radio and heater to eliminate unnecessary power drains. Then set your parking brake and shift your transmission into the "Park" position. (A manual transmission should be placed in "Neutral".)

Four — As an added safety precaution, loosen the vent caps from each battery to release gases that may have accumulated inside, and cover the vent holes with a cloth. Batteries contain sulfuric acid and produce hydrogen and oxygen gases during normal operation. (If acid contacts skin, eyes or clothing, flush immediately with water for a minimum of five minutes and get "on-the-spot" medical attention.)

Five — With the engine turned off, connect one end of either of the two booster cables to the POSITIVE terminal of the booster battery. Then attach the other end of the same cable to the POSITIVE terminal post of the weak battery. The positive terminal on most late-model domestic car batteries is identified with a plus (+) sign and will have a cable leading to the starter switch or solenoid.

Six — Connect one end of the second cable to the NEGATIVE (-) terminal of the booster (good) battery, and the other end of the same cable to a ground connection on your disabled vehicle such as the engine block. Do not connect it to the negative terminal of the disabled battery.

Now the jumper cables are connected properly. Start the engine of the car with the booster battery and turn on your own car's ignition. Once your engine is running at normal idle speed, simply reverse the hook-up procedure to remove the cables.

Boosting a weak or dead battery may seem easy enough. However, because air conditioning and other power accessories demand higher capacity batteries on newer model cars, there's good reason to use caution.

Automatic teller easy to fool with numbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the statement from Olive Koenig's savings-and-loan association said $1,350 had been withdrawn from her account, she thought it was a computer error that would be corrected.

But Mrs. Koenig never got back her money.

By using her stolen "debit card," which looks much like a credit card, and by knowing her identification number, someone withdrew the money without her knowledge through one of the Columbus, Ohio, institution's automatic teller machines. Such devices allow bank and savings-and-loan customers to make withdrawals at any time by using an identification number plus the debit card.

Complaints to the U.S. Congress from Mrs. Koenig and others may lead to the first federal safeguards on the 24-hour teller facilities.

The House of Representatives banking committee is expected to pass this week a bill limiting to $50 a customer's liability for unauthorized withdrawals. The full Senate is expected to take up a similar bill late this month.

The estimated 8,000 "24-hour teller" machines across the U.S. handle an average 2,000 transactions a month. Many machines are outside banks and savings-and-loan buildings; in some states they are in shopping centres and at other locations.

BANKS NOT LIABLE

As most automatic tellers are used now, a customer has no way to prove he did not make every withdrawal charged to his account. Nor is a signature required, only an identification number. Financial institutions, courts have found, are not liable for unauthorized use of debit cards.

Sex law changes

By GERARD MCNEIL
OTTAWA (CP) —

Disturbing a religious ceremony no longer would be a sexual offence if proposals by the Law Reform Commission of Canada become law.

In a working paper made public Monday, the commission says causing a disturbance, obstructing a clergyman and tossing a stink bomb "should be removed from the ambit of sexual offences."

If the public agrees, the commission will recommend these and other changes to Parliament, whose members have over the years produced some bizarre laws on human sexual behavior.

Canadians are only dimly aware of some of these provisions. Take steamboat sex, for example. It may come back if a law prohibiting captains and crews from seducing female passengers is repealed, as the commission suggests.

And no longer would shepherds who get too intimate with members of their flock be prohibited from strolling on public beaches.

The commission says bestiality should no longer be a crime, except where it is forcible or public.

It also says a general section prohibiting sexual offenders from wandering on beaches, near playgrounds or in parks should be repealed.

"A conviction for bestiality does not lead to the conclusion that the person is a potential menace wandering on a public beach," the commission observed.

RAISES QUESTIONS

It says sex among those under 14 should continue to be banned. But it raises some questions about the age limit.

"Most people agree on restricting sexual interaction between adults and children," it says. "But it is interesting to note that until 1890, the absolute prohibition on sexual intercourse with young females extended only to age 10. Stephen's draft code of 1892 set the age at 12."

Raising it to 14 was a 20th century idea which has landed many an unsuspecting man in jail.

The limit remains "even though biological sex maturation takes place earlier now than it did 100 years ago."

The commission admits that few Canadians would support a reduction in the age limit. It says it is possible to make a reasonable case for keeping the limit at 14.

But it warns that a law against sex with girls 14 to 16 "of previously chaste character" is expecting too much.

"In view of the generally earlier maturation of girls than of boys, much conduct between non-adult teenagers, while not to be encouraged in law, is conscientiously too difficult to maintain as a crime."

The matter should be left to provincial child welfare laws "according to the wisdom of the legislators of each province."

Boy drowned before crowd

MONTREAL (CP) —

About a dozen people watched a seven-year-old boy drown Saturday and refused to jump into the Rivière des Prairies to save him, some saying the water was too polluted.

Police said Martin Turgeon of Montreal slipped off a wharf near a spot where untreated sewage is dumped into the river.

"We're not going in there—the water is much too dirty," witnesses quoted one onlooker as saying.

Some people even left the scene as the boy's father, a non-swimmer, thrashed about in the water and screamed for help.

A boater fished the boy's body out of the river about 25 minutes later.

"It makes you wonder about how human people are," a police officer remarked. "The boy probably would have been saved."

The boy's family said they were too shaken up to talk about the incident.

At approximately 4 p.m. Sunday a forest fire was reported one half mile south of the Williams Lake bridge on Highway 25. The Terrace Forest Ranger called the duty officer at Prince Rupert, and the Forestry Service sent in 3

A-28 and one DC 6 air tankers who made a total of 7 drops. Thirty-five men, 2 "cats" and 3 fire pumps were employed in fighting and mopping-up operations. Twenty acres (eight hectares) were reported consumed by the blaze.

Skeena River summer closures

Both Skeena River chinook and coho stocks have declined during the past decade to a level where severe conservation measures are required.

In 1973, restrictions were placed on the commercial fishery and the non-tidal sports fishery to reduce exploitation on these stocks.

Since 1973, these restrictions have been imposed annually to preserve returning brood stocks. The progress of rebuilding these stocks has been slow, as there have been years when escapements have improved and other years when escapements simply held their own. However, the program of rebuilding these stocks is necessary, and restrictions are again to be implemented on both the sport fishery and the commercial fishery.

The following is a list of salmon sport fish closures on the Skeena River system for 1978:

1. Kitsumkalum River and tributaries:

- Chinook Salmon Closure.

- Upstream from the canyon which is located immediately north of the mouth of Deep Creek and designated by fishing boundary signs, closed from June 15 to August 15. The entire river, upstream from the Canadian National Railway bridge closed from August 15 to October 31.

2. Skeena River:

- Chinook Salmon Closure.

- From its confluence with the Lakelse River upstream to a point one mile above its confluence with the Kitsumkalum River, from August 15 to September 30.

3. Lakelse River and tributaries:

(1) - Chinook Salmon Closure.

- Closed throughout the year above a boundary at the bridge.

(2) - Gear Restriction.

- No person shall use more than one hook having more than one point, throughout the year.

(3) - Coho Salmon Closure.

- Closed above the Canadian National Railway trestle, from October 1 to December 31.

4. Kispiox River and tributaries:

- Chinook Salmon Closure.

- Closed throughout the year.

5. Kitwanga River and tributaries:

- Chinook Salmon Closure.

- Closed throughout the year.

6. Babine River:

- Angling Closure.

Hostage taker regrets release

MONTREAL (CP) —

Edgar Roussel, one of three men who held seven hostages at a provincial prison for 15 days earlier this year, says he now regrets his "humanitarian" gesture of releasing them unharmed.

In a letter published today that Roussel wrote to one of the negotiators in the hostage-taking, he says a special handling unit at nearby Laval Institute is a "monster factory."

"Today, I regret the humanitarian gesture I made in allowing the safe release of the hostages," Roussel told broadcaster Claude Poirier.

Alleging the special unit guards go out of their way to make life tough for the prisoners, Roussel says: "We aren't angels but we are still human beings. Rules are needed, but they (the guards) use them to degrade the detainees."

"I have a television set in my cell but I have no air. Where are the windows? I would exchange my television set for a window."

Heroin treatment program explained by doctor

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Heroin Treatment Act has been misrepresented as a program to force treatment to addicts, says Dr. Conrad Schwartz, head of the department of psychiatry at St. Paul's Hospital.

"Treatment of addicts has not been made compulsory," Scharz said recently. "The individual has the choice: either treatment or trial, and this says it exactly."

The act has come under fire from the Elizabeth Fry Society of B.C., which wrote to Health Minister Bob McClelland saying it could not support the act and is "concerned about its apparent extremely narrow focus."

Under the legislation, evaluation panels composed of doctors, psychologists and other persons will be appointed by the government to examine individuals who either offer themselves, or who are compelled by police or court authorities to undergo examination for possible commitment under the plan. If judged unanimously to be addicted, an individual will face detention for up to six months as part of an over-all three year treatment plan.

Schwartz said a maximum of 300 addicts a year could be committed to treatment in hospitals because there is no more space available.

Stability to Zaire

PARIS (AP) — Four European countries and the United States open two days of talks today on how to bring stability and security to Zaire and other western-oriented African states.

France called the meeting in the wake of the recent invasion of Zaire's Shaba province by exiled Lunda tribesmen opposed to President Mobutu Sese Seko. Also attending are Britain, Belgium and West Germany, which like France built up huge African colonial empires in the 19th century and still have extensive economic, cultural and political links with their former colonies.

France rushed 600 Foreign Legion paratroops to Shaba last month to help drive out the Lunda rebels. On Sunday, the U.S. Air Force began flying 1,500 Moroccan troops to southern Zaire to replace the French troops.

The Moroccans are the nucleus of a Pan-African peace force which France is sponsoring as the West's answer to Soviet-backed Cuban troops in Africa. France expects the force also to include contingents from Senegal, the Ivory Coast, Togo, Gabon and the Central African Empire, all former French colonies.

FRANCE PROMOTES FORCE

The French government, which is committed to giving military aid to more than a dozen African countries, would like the other Western powers to endorse the idea of the Pan-African force and to promise their material help for any future operations by such a force. The French want the U.S. in particular and the other former colonial powers to acknowledge that they have a special responsibility for the security and economic development of the Western-oriented African countries.

In line with this, France has advanced the idea of a special fund to help improve the economies of African countries with security problems.

U.S. officials have warned the French colleagues not to expect deployment of U.S. troops in Africa under any foreseeable circumstances. They said, however, that the United States may be prepared to help with the transportation, logistics and financing of a Pan-African force.

RAIL CENTRE RETAKEN

In Zaire, Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua visited President Mobutu and the government announced that its army has recaptured Mutshatsha, a railway centre in Shaba, from the invaders.

The Chinese minister detoured through Africa on his way home from the UN General Assembly in New York. Mobutu received him in Lubumbashi, the capital of Shaba.

AZAP, the Zaire government's news agency, said a force of about 350 Zairian troops recaptured Mutshatsha after "severe" fighting Saturday in which one soldier was killed and three were wounded. The report said the rebels fled toward the Zambian border, but it made no mention of their casualties.

Mutshatsha is about 130 kilometres west of Kolwezi, the copper-mining centre which the invaders occupied for a week in mid-May until the French drove them out. AZAP said Mobutu delayed attacking it because the rebels were reported holding about 60 European hostages. He ordered the attack when intercepted radio messages about a week ago indicated the hostages were being killed because their captors were running short of food, the agency said.

No confirmation of the report was available, and AZAP did not say whether the bodies of any of the Europeans had been found.

ANSWER THE KANGAROO

VANCOUVER (CP) — It may be you thought you would go through life without ever owning a kangaroo telephone, but telephone salesmen think such attitudes can be changed. At least Northern Telecom thinks so—the firm is marketing a telephone shaped like a kangaroo with a scribble pad cradled in the statue's arms.

No proposals for Israeli peace plan

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli cabinet has put off for at least another week a decision on how to respond to U.S. questions about Prime Minister Menachem Begin's proposals for an Arab-Israeli peace agreement.

The cabinet met for four hours Sunday. Cabinet Secretary Arieh Naor said no proposals to amend Israel's peace plan were made although the American questions were discussed.

The United States wants to know what Israel has in mind for the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip after the five-year transition period of limited autonomy which Prime Minister Menachem Begin has proposed for the territories.

The U.S. state department hopes that Israel's answers will help it get the stalled peace talks with Egypt going.

Washington also wants Israel's suggestion on how the Palestinians can participate in deciding their own future.

Radio Israel said State Secretary Cyrus Vance urged the government last week not to delay its response to the questions. The cabinet had put off the discussion twice, first to discuss the U.S. decision to sell jet fighter planes to Saudi Arabia and last week because Begin was ill.

URGE GREATER ROLE

Foreign Minister Moshe

Dayan is reported pressing the cabinet to agree to a greater role for Jordan, which seized the West Bank in the 1948 war and held it until Israel captured it in the 1967 war.

Israeli news reports say Dayan believes that if Jordan were offered increased influence on the West Bank, King Hussein would join Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in negotiating directly with Israel.

Begin, who had a fever last weekend, led the cabinet meeting and also attended festivities marking the 11th anniversary of the capture of Arab East Jerusalem in the 1967 war.

Jerusalem's business district was closed, about 12,000 Israelis marched in a parade and museums and the Knesset, Israel's parliament, were crowded with holidayers.

Follies of detente prove to be valuable

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Helmut Sonnenfeldt, sitting alongside Henry Kissinger in the Kremlin, Jan. 21, 1976, was a day to remember.

As he tells the story there he was, idly fiddling with his wrist watch across the table from Leonid Brezhnev, while an interpreter droned through a Russian statement on nuclear arms control.

Suddenly the Soviet leader leaned across and, Sonnenfeldt recalled in an interview, remarked: "Let me look at your watch."

Sonnenfeldt, then a U.S. state department special counsellor, passed it over and Brezhnev tried it on his own wrist.

"I like it," he said. "I'd like to keep it."

Sonnenfeldt replied he was honored to see his timepiece on so eminent a wrist but added: "I'm afraid I shall be in trouble with my mother-in-law, who gave this to me as a gift."

Brezhnev said he would give Sonnenfeldt his own in exchange.

ADMIRE WATCH

"I'd seen General Secretary Brezhnev's fine pocket watch for years at various meetings," Son-nenfeldt reflected. "It had a gold chain attached. I told him that would be nice but it still would not solve problems with my mother-in-law."

At that point Brezhnev excused himself, left the room and soon returned with another watch, Swiss-made, and handed it too to Sonnenfeldt.

"I wasn't about to agree, wanting to lead him on a bit, but then Henry Kissinger kicked me under the table. He was signalling to me to lay off and so I did."

Brezhnev thereupon wrote a note in Russian saying that someday, perhaps, the two would re-exchange their watches.

Word of the incident got around after the talks, suggesting Brezhnev had swapped his homemade, cheap tin watch for Sonnenfeldt's valuable timepiece.

"The affair became a kind of allegory illustrating the follies of detente," Sonnenfeldt related. "There were suggestions that Brezhnev, who always saw me as a hardliner, had taken me to the cleaners."

STORY NOT TRUE

That, in fact, turned out to be far from the truth.

The former U.S. diplomat recalled that when he got home he had Brezhnev's two watches and gold chain appraised for insurance purposes—and found they were worth at least three times his mother-in-law's gift.

"So, actually, Brezhnev took himself to the cleaners," Sonnenfeldt said. There were two sequels to this tale:

First, state department protocol officers cited laws telling Sonnenfeldt that government men must turn over any valuable gifts they receive in conducting foreign business to the treasury department—or pay duty on them.

"I got over that one," Sonnenfeldt said. "I explained the watches weren't outright gifts but a contingent gift because Brezhnev's note made clear some day we may re-exchange the watches."

Secondly, on getting home, Sonnenfeldt discovered he had not been wearing the watch his mother-in-law had given him after all—but one he had bought himself for $110 at a Munich military post exchange some time before.

U.S. bear maulings drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of people attacked by bears in the United States' national parks dropped substantially last year, a reduction in part attributed to new efforts to stop bears from mauling campers.

John Dennis, a National Park Service biologist, said black and grizzly bears injured 26 persons in 1977, compared with 44 the previous year. There were no fatalities last year; two persons were killed by bears in 1976, he said.

Dennis noted the park service is giving "more management attention to closing campgrounds and trails" where humans are likely to encounter bears.

The service also is closing garbage dumps that attract bears and enforcing regulations requiring campers to store food properly, so that bears cannot get to it.

The service also live-traps and transplants bears that nose around campfires and hiking trails, bears that one day might lose their fear of humans and cause trouble, he said.

TRANSPLANTED BEARS

The service last year transplanted 17 grizzlies and 237 black bears, he said. In addition, it killed one grizzly and 25 black bears that proved especially troublesome.

Part of the bear problem results from increasing numbers of visitors in U.S. parks, he said. The greater numbers increase the likelihood of a bearhuman encounter.

Grizzlies are considered more dangerous because of their size. A mature grizzly may weigh up to 1,000 pounds. A black bear, by comparison, rarely reaches a weight of 500 pounds.

To reduce the chances of a bear attack, park rangers advise hikers to travel in groups and make noise to avoid surprising a bear.

According to the Aztec calendar, a week lasted 20 days.

Black squatters tear gassed

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — South African police used tear gas against black squatters in a raid on a shanty town near here early today, witnesses said.

About 50 blacks were reported arrested. The raid was on Crossroads squatter camp, which houses about 20,000 blacks and is the last of the big shanty towns following demolition of two others as health hazards.

Crossroads residents said police, some armed, surrounded the camp before dawn and stopped people on their way to work. Those without official permits to live in the area were arrested.

Community leaders said that at one point, a crowd protested against the arrests and police fired tear gas. Reporters said they saw children throwing rocks at a van driving out of the camp, which is on scrubland south of Cape Town.

A spokesman for the local black affairs authority said many people had been arrested, but he refused to give numbers. Squatters said some of those detained had simply forgotten to carry their passes with them but were not allowed to go home and get them.

Two nearby black squatter camps, Modder and Unibel, have been bulldozed during the past nine months. Because of South Africa's apartheid laws which control the movement of blacks, many of their occupants had been working in the Cape Town area illegally.

Nazi supporter shoots classmates

By ROB WILSON
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — When 15-year-old Roger Needham showed up at Everett high school wearing a Nazi party pin and talking about Adolf Hitler, his classmates jeered.

On a cold February day, Needham heard one taunt too many. He pulled a .22-calibre Luger-style pistol in a crowded school hallway and shot two teasing classmates. One of the boys died.

Today, Needham will be brought from Ingham County jail to answer for his no-contest plea on a murder charge. He is being treated as a juvenile, so Probate Judge Donald Owens will merely pronounce where he will go for detention and therapy.

That will put Roger Needham away until he is at least 19.

But it will not answer the questions asked at Everett high school. Who is Roger Needham; but for his Nazi pin he looked like just another kid in longish hair, blue jeans and tennis shoes. When exactly did he slip from a perhaps unnatural interest in war into a belief in Nazism that could cause him to kill?

Authorities have described Needham as a brilliant loner. They said he once made a detailed blueprint of a Nazi extermination camp complete with gas chambers. A psychiatrist described him as "highly intelligent, hostile, intensely angry at everyone." DIARY FOUND

After the shootings on Feb. 22, authorities found a diary in which the boy had written about his school experiences. One entry read:

"I almost abandoned Hitler last night—out of being pushed too far by my colleagues. I almost went to school without my Nazi party pin in my jacket. But luckily again I had a burst of courage and never again will I think about abandoning mein fueshrer and Nazism."

The diary, entitled "My Struggle after Hitler's Mein Kampf," also contained this passage: "While I in no way forgive my enemies, I will refrain from killing them for the moment."

The entry was written two days before Needham fatally shot 15-year-old Bill Draher and wounded 16-year-old Kevin Jones. Jones, grazed in the head in the shooting, later admitted he had been looking for a fight with Needham "because of the Nazi deal."

Daniel McLellan, chief assistant prosecutor for Ingham County, said Needham probably became aware of Nazism because his father, a Cooley Law School professor, is a Second World War history buff. The pistol used by the youth belonged to his father, he said.

Needham's parents are divorced and the youth lived with his father, McLellan said. The elder Needham has refused to discuss the case.

A pity they were betrayed

NEW YORK (AP) — Victor Kugler remembers Anne Frank as "a vivid girl," a girl who "was talking all day—talking, talking, talking."

"I did nothing special," said the man who hid the young Jewish girl and her family from the Germans in occupied Amsterdam. "I could not leave my best friends to the Nazis."

Kugler was recognized Sunday by the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion for "encouraging the values and ideals which derive from religious teachings." The Dutch native, now 78 and a resident of Toronto, received a $10,000 award.

In 1942, the Franks and their friends moved into a secret area behind a bookcase, upstairs from Otto Frank's spiceimporting business in Amsterdam. For the next 25 months, Kugler maintained the business and helped smuggle food into the annex that served as both a refuge and a prison for its occupants.

In July, 1944, an informer tipped the Nazis to the location of the hideaway in exchange for $12. Anne's father was the only one of the eight inhabitants of the hiding place to survive the concentration camps.

"It was such a pity that we were betrayed only a few months before the war was over," Kugler said.

Kugler himself was sent to a labor camp, but he escaped during a prisoner transfer to Germany. He remained in hiding until the end of the war.

Otto Frank discovered his daughter's diary when he returned to the hiding place after the war. Kugler appears as "Kraler" in the diary, which has been published in dozens of languages and has been made into a play and a movie.

Smoldering fire threatens lives

CENTRALIA, Pa. (AP) — Under the Odd Fellows cemetery, where generations of miners and their families are buried, a coal mine fire has smoldered for 16 years, holding a threat for the living.

"It gets so hot out there at that cemetery, no snow lies there in the winter," said retired miner Tom Cook. "The town wanted to know where to put all the snow last winter, and I told them to put it out at the cemetery. But they wouldn't do it."

But the heat is not the big problem as the fire licks at a manmade barrier of fly ash—coal residue from power plants—pumped into the mine beneath Centralia. Retired miner Tony Gaughan can watch two holes about 35 metres from his backyard puffing hot vapor as a constant reminder of the danger of deadly carbon monoxide produced by the fire.

He had three neighbors whose homes were even closer, but they had to leave and their homes were torn down.

CAN'T BLOCK FIRE

In 1972, the U.S. Bureau of Mines finished injecting a wall of fly ash into the ground a short distance behind the homes of Gaughan and about a dozen neighbors, hoping the fire would burn itself out.

But monitors detected leaking carbon monoxide last month, so workers returned with drills and pumps to create a subterranean barrier of 100,000 tons of fly ash even closer to the

Those efforts have consumed $2.7 million so far—enough to run Centralia's government for the next 77 years.

Many of Centralia's 1,100 residents are former coal miners and their families, and after 16 years, they say the fire is just something to live with.

"People say it's too bad, but..." said Cook, shrugging his shoulders.

The community has been spared any tragedy from the fire so far; however, a mining official warns that carbon monoxide testing is not a foolproof safeguard.

"We have not detected carbon monoxide in the homes that we are now testing," said Walter Vicinelli, director of the state's bureau of deep mine safety. But, he added: "We could test in the morning and you could find carbon monoxide an hour later."

Saves Mother

FRUITLAND, N.M. (AP) — A 14-year-old Navajo boy helped save a woman being swept along by the rushing waters of the nearby San Juan River, when he discovered she was his mother.

Sheriff's deputies said the youth, Willard John, and two other teen-agers, Priscilla Jim, 13, and Leo Hoskie, 15, were crossing a bridge Saturday when they saw a woman pass beneath the structure.

Dancers from across Canada will be in Edmonton this summer to participate in Festival 78 the cultural part of the 11th Commonwealth Games. The Games, scheduled August 3-12, will have 48 nations participating in 10 sports. (Canadian Government Office of Tourism Photo)

Culture at Commonwealth Games

Normally one doesn't associate western Canada, and specifically the city of Edmonton, Alberta, with the sound of African drums, the calypso rhythms of a Caribbean steel band, the romantic sounds of Polynesia or the exotic music of the far east.

But then this isn't a normal year as far as Edmonton is concerned.

In addition to all the regular annual happenings such as exhibitions and Klondike Days, Edmonton, this summer, will host the 11th edition of the Commonwealth Games. From Aug. 3-12, athletes from 48 countries will meet head-to-head in athletic competition.

Part and parcel of the Games is an almost equally ambitious project called Festival 78.

Festival 78 will undoubtedly be the largest arts and culture project in the country this summer.

A significant part of the Festival will be the "Commonwealth Carnival," featuring performers, visual artists, crafts persons and displays from over 20 Commonwealth countries.

In addition to Edmonton, other Canadian cities will have a chance to see the Carnival. For instance, the Calgary Stampede's theme this year is a "Salute to the Commonwealth."

The grandstand show at the Stampede (July 7-16) will include performers from several Commonwealth countries as will the Edmonton Exhibition's annual "Coliseum of Stars," during Klondike Days (July 19-29).

In the Games city, the bulk of the displays and events will take place at shopping malls during late July and August. Because the Commonwealth falls into roughly six major geographical areas, each will emphasize a region such as United Kingdom, Africa, Caribbean, Europe, Oceania and Asia.

The second major part of the Festival 78 program is a "Canadian Folk Arts Festival." Dancers, singers and musicians from across Canada will perform in Edmonton July 31-Aug. 12. All 10 provinces and the two territories are expected to be represented.

Appropriately, Edmonton's annual Heritage Festival will launch the Folk Arts program. Over 40 multicultural groups participated in the one-day affair last year and attendance exceeded 40,000. With the addition of individual provincial displays and presentations this year, the largest Heritage Festival ever is guaranteed.

Following the one-day launch, each provincial show will be featured for one week of the two-week Games period in Edmonton. The shows will be presented on a number of outdoor stages at Hawrelak Park and in the various athletic facilities including the new 42,400-seat Commonwealth Stadium. Plans are also being made to have the provincial shows tour other Alberta communities.

Other Festival 78 highlights range from a Commonwealth Children's Art Exhibition to a classical music competition.

There's a choice of half a dozen art exhibitions such as: Canadian art from the Group of Seven to 1970; painting and sculpture from both Canada and Great Britain; a collection of paintings and sculpture by Alberta artists recently hailed by European art critics; the art of Canada's West Coast Indians; a unique presentation of Australian aboriginal art; a collection of paintings, photographs, sculpture and lithographs capturing the highlights of Canada's sports history; and Commonwealth children's art and sculpture in all its forms.

As part of Festival 78 there are three major crafts events planned including: a presentation of top Alberta crafts created specifically for the Festival; a presentation of over 250 examples of the very best contemporary works by leading Canadian craftsmen; and a Craft Fair where you can purchase Alberta crafts and art work.

Rounding out the program are special events and attractions including: a concert series featuring top popular and classical artists and companies from Canada and the Commonwealth; presentations of the work of more than 100 Canadian writers, composers and choreographers at the annual Banff Festival, just a triple jump from Calgary; a Commonwealth film festival; dance companies in programs designed specifically for children; and music competitions with over 300 young classical musicians from across Canada taking part.

For further information on locations and times write to: Festival 78, XI Commonwealth Games, P.O. Box 1978, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada T5J 5J5 or call (403) 428-1978.

A total of 10 sports make up the Commonwealth Games program including athletics, badminton,

Food is love

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — People in the United States treat food as status, language and refuge and such deeply ingrained symbolism frustrates all but a handful of dieters, say researchers at the University of California at Berkeley.

"The way we relate to food is deeply rooted and very, very important," nutritionist Barbara Abrams said Sunday. "Food is associated with love for a lot of us. Some people don't know how to feel love from other people, so they eat all the time. 'And it's our self-expression,'" she told a conference on nutrition and health. "We rarely offer food to someone we don't like, but with someone we like we use food as a form of sharing."

"We also use food as a crutch. There are those who, when they're under stress, will eat everything in sight. We even use food as reward and punishment for children."

Such habits and perceptions are an integral part of each individual, she said, and must be dealt with if changes in diet are to succeed.

Pot can ruin teeth

CHICAGO (AP) — Marijuana and dental treatment don't mix, say two dental researchers who warn that marijuana users may suffer serious side-effects because of reactions to drugs used in dental treatment.

For that reason, they advise habitual marijuana smokers to abstain from use of the substance for a period before and after treatment.

The researchers review marijuana in relation to stress in dental treatment in the June issue of the Journal of the American Dental Association. They are Drs. Leonard Horowitz of the Eastman Dental Centre in Rochester, N.Y., and Robert Nersasian of Tufts University school of dental medicine in Boston.

They point out that about half of college-age people in the United States used marijuana in 1972, with eight per cent smoking it daily. And they say it is projected that 66 per cent of young adults will use it by 1980.

For this reason, they advise dentists, more young dental patients will be seeking elective or emergency dental treatment while under the influence of marijuana.

STUDY NEEDED
Marijuana, they say, "is a potent, pharmacologically active agent that could affect and complicate a dental procedure" and it needs further study as it relates to dental treatment.

They say it interferes with normal cardiovascular mechanisms and those responses involving the involuntary nervous system. Patients who have used marijuana may develop irregular heartbeats and may experience drops in blood pressure to the point where they faint, Drs. Horowitz and Nersasian say. The chemically active ingredients in marijuana alone are capable of inducing a number of abnormal responses involving the heart, lungs and blood vessels, as well as other physiologically dangerous changes.

They cite a study that concluded medicines commonly used in dental treatment containing atropine or epinephrine in patients who use marijuana might intensify and prolong abnormally rapid heartbeats "for a dangerously long period of time."

A Living Room that Keeps Office Hours as Well

A woman's place may well be in the home — but only if the home offers her a place where she can effectively carry on her diverse activities. So it is, with so many women starting their own businesses or just working at home, that an office-in-the-home has become a very viable concept.

With currently inflated prices, the prospect of adding another room is often out of the question, and the alternative — redesigning an already existing room to make it serve two functions — is beginning to make more sense to more families. Like the husband's study that can double as a guest room, designer Sharon Meadows feels a living room can do double duty as a lady's office. It's easy, economical — and egalitarian! (After all, not every housebound executive wants to work at the kitchen table.)

In her decorating scheme, Ms. Meadows used Finishing Touch's spacious curved-leg desk as a focal point. From the Charter collection, its rich look of olive ash burl with leathery inserts and intricately fashioned hardware makes it a conversation piece in the living room, as well as a joy to work at. Offsetting the desk's horizontal lines, the designer chose the tall, slender form of Ridgeway's "Chateau" floor clock to fill a corner between a wall of curtains and a panel of ceiling-to-floor draperies. The grandmother clock is the best example of a piece that plays a dual role: as a beautiful and decorative addition to a living room and a functional timepiece, keeping a lady apprised of her valuable hours.

Seating space is essential to both the room's social and business purposes. Ms. Meadows chose two Kay-Lyn loveseats to face each other across a chrome-and-glass coffee table. It's a comfortable corner, equally right for entertaining guests with evening con-dials or conducting casual corporate meetings. And Kay-Lyn's velvet-cushioned desk chair lets madame feel quite at home while at the "office."

Finally, don't neglect the personal touches. Nothing is worse than an office — at home or away — that's too businesslike or a living room with no sign of its family. So, with a fresh coat of paint, a few personal effects and just the right furniture, anyone can expand her living space without exhausting her budget and, when it's all done, have an elegant living room that's an equally elegant office — both just right for a busy Ms.

The secret to efficient housekeeping is in getting maximum usage out of everything around the house — and that goes for many objects you'd normally pitch out, like worn-down-to-a-slicer soap or worn-out socks.

A thin piece of soap can be an aid when sewing, for example. You can use it to mark hemlines and darts, without worrying about tell-tale markings — washing the fabric removes the soap without a trace. And a great way to use old socks is to slip shoes inside them when traveling.

Acoustical tile for a new family room will help control noise.

This beautiful executive quality home is located on a secluded 2 acre parcel of land, with great potential for excellent rockeries and flower gardens due to its unusual land features.

The house itself is large and roomy. Complete with 5 bedrooms all with large closets and floor space. 2 full and 1/2 bathrooms. Livingroom and diningroom feature hardwood floors and bay windows. Brick fireplace in family room. Large bright kitchen with eating area.

Attached double garage and many storage areas complete this quality home.

For appointment to view call Bonnie or Bud at 635-6131.

to consult or not to consult

When the housewife makes up her mind to redecorate, she is often faced with the big question: should I get a professional decorator to do the job or should I do it all myself? The answer depends on the kind of person she is. Many women are unsure about color schemes and feel they lack imagination. Such a housewife would definitely profit from consulting an interior decorator. Other women have very definite ideas about how they want their home to look and don't want someone else's tastes "imposed" on them. Most of us, however, are somewhere in between... with a pretty good notion of the kind of atmosphere we want in our homes and an appreciation of the expert advice that a decorator can offer.

Actually, a good decorator never imposes his or her taste on the homeowner — rather, the decorator's job is to translate your tastes and life style into an attractive, comfortable and practical setting for you and your family.

Many women who would love to use the services of a decorator, hesitate to do so because of the cost. If you're on a budget, why not check into the decorating services offered by the large stores in your town? Many of these stores have a trained consultant on staff to advise you on decorating problems at no charge.

If your budget allows for an independent decorator, ask to see samples or illustrations of his or her work, before making a commitment. When you find a decorator whose work pleases you, be frank regarding your finances, your needs, and your wishes.

Happy decorating!

Mother Shocked By Teen's Letter

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 By Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am so upset I hardly know how to start this letter. While straightening up my teen-age daughter's room, I came across a letter from a friend of hers in another state. I read it, partly out of curiosity, and partly to determine if it was something that could be discarded.

I was horrified at the filthy language, and also at the girl's delight in having found a theater that shows only dirty movies!

This letter also described family possessions and "vacations," but Abby, I know the girl's parents and correspond with them, and this girl was writing lies.

What should I do? Now I suspect that my daughter must be responding to these letters in equally filthy language, and since this girl is my daughter's best friend, I must assume that my daughter's tastes run toward dirty movies, too.

Don't these kids know that filling their minds and mouths with garbage will do them no good?

Should I write to this girl's mother and tell her to talk with her daughter? Should I talk with my daughter and tell her what I've learned? Or are we too late to shape our children's morals once they've reached their teens?

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: If you have done your best to shape your daughter's morals, you need not consider yourself a "failure." Some teenagers feel "big" and grown-up using gutter language, exaggerating and even lying a little for effect, but that doesn't mean they are "no good." If they have been properly brought up (and even the best-reared children sometimes go through this stage), they will outgrow it.

At the appropriate time, subtly warn your daughter that mucking around in the lower registers of speech and entertainment can be habit forming. In the meantime, keep the avenues of communication open between you and your daughter, and don't shake her confidence in you by letting her know that you were snooping. You were, you know.

DEAR ABBY: How does a father who has excelled in sports all his life adjust to a 14-year-old son who has never shown even a normal interest in sports?

I realize that not all boys can be great athletes, but my son has the build for it, and the coordination, too. He could be really good if he wanted to, but he's lazy, and he isn't competitive in anything.

I have done my best to get him interested in sports ever since he was old enough to hold a ball, Abby, but it never caught on. Believe me, it's not easy to be a good father to a boy like this. Any suggestions?

SAD DAD

DEAR DAD: Yes, lay off. A "good" father forgets himself and thinks of his son. He then encourages the boy to grow in the direction he seems inclined.

DEAR ABBY: I am new in this community and have made many lovely new friends. I met a lady at church and invited her to my home for coffee and cake. It was then that I discovered that she is either a thief or a kleptomaniac, for when I went into the kitchen for a moment, and suddenly returned, I saw her open her large purse and drop my silver spoon and fork into it.

You can't imagine how shocked I was! Now I do not want to make a big issue of it by preferring charges against her, but I do want my silverware back as those pieces are sterling silver and are part of my set. Do I dare ask her to return them? And if so, how? I have told no one and do not intend to.

NEW IN TOWN

DEAR NEW: You are considerate, compassionate and wise. Telephone the lady and tell her you saw her take your silverware and would appreciate her returning it. Then tell her that you know there are people who have a compulsion to take things, which is an illness, so you "understand," will tell no one, and hope that she will seek professional help.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who is in a home for unwed mothers, has decided to put her baby up for adoption. She's not even sure who the baby's father is, so I think she's doing the right thing. (She's only 14.) She doesn't even want to see the baby after it's born. She says it will be easier to forget if she doesn't.

Abby, even though it would be a lie, what harm would there be in telling her that her baby died at birth? I wouldn't ask the doctor to tell the lie—I will take all the responsibility myself. I just want the doctor and the people at the hospital where she will have the baby to back me up on my story.

My daughter has suffered enough already, and it will be much easier for her if she thinks that her baby died. Then she won't have to go through life wondering where her child is. I can see only good in this lie, but if you think I'm wrong, please tell me why and I'll do as you say. Thank you.

HEARTSICK IN SEATTLE

DEAR HEARTSICK: Although your intentions are good, you can't accomplish good through evil acts. Please, dear, abandon this dishonest scheme. Regardless of how well-intentioned it is, it's wrong.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am bragging, but my problem is that I am too attractive. When I was in high school I never had any girlfriends because they were all afraid I'd take their boyfriends away from them. When I went to work I had to quit one job after another because my bosses were forever making passes at me. Now that I am married, I have the same problem.

All of my husband's friends proposition me, and I have to tell them off. And we don't have any married couples to go around with because the wives are afraid of the competition. Sometimes I wish I were born ugly. What's the solution?

"RED" IN REDWOOD CITY

DEAR "RED": Face it, dear, if you aren't consciously diverting the attentions of the opposite sex, you must be doing so unconsciously. No man in his right mind makes a pass at a statue. He needs some encouragement. A woman who has to beat off every man she meets should find out why.

Don't pile other produce on top of eggplants in the refrigerator. They bruise easily.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7, 1978

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) This is no time for "giving up"—especially if a project or task is really worth a second, even a third try. Your ability to persevere is the answer.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) An analytical look at your position may indicate some new avenues to explore. Keep alert to future moves, possibilities for making new contacts.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) Emphasize your resourcefulness and sense of responsibility. It will pay off in the days ahead. Do not let down in effort until projects are satisfactorily completed.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22) Stars not too auspicious. This means a need for more concentrated effort, perhaps a readjustment of your schedule—the better to suit changing requirements.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 23) A day when your innate aggressiveness will pay off. Energy and drive will finally help you to achieve some long-desired objective.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Some information you have needed in a financial matter can now be obtained—possibly through a social contact. It will make your day!

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) A generally auspicious day. This is a period in which to give your finest performance, to capitalize on your many talents—especially in creative endeavor.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) Day may not seem to hold much opportunity at first, but if you look closely, you will find it has many advantages. Results will be largely up to YOU.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Without much planetary assistance, you can still net top returns but, before acting, plan well, be sure of facts and details, and DON'T procrastinate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Important now: common sense, logical analysis of all situations, ease of action. Domestic and social interests highly favored. Don't waste time on regrets.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Profit by past mistakes and by sound advice. You have a wonderful chance for accomplishment but day needs the right push, steadiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Counting one's blessings makes every picture rosier, but DON'T count returns you have not and MAY NOT receive. Mixed influences: Use care in all things.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with unusual individuality, originality and adaptability. Your governing planet, Mercury, indicates alertness and versatility, but you are often dissatisfied with your accomplishments. A perfectionist at heart, you often feel dependent because you feel you "could have done better." Never lose confidence in yourself. Foster your talent for sensing the needs of others and knowing how to cope with unwieldy situations. You usually work best when you're "on your own" but are more than cooperative when need be.

Your thirst for knowledge is all-consuming. Nourish it, since the greater your education, the higher your accomplishments. You could succeed as a journalist, architect, painter, musician, scientist or lawyer. Birthdate of: Paul Gauguin, French painter; Dean Martin, singer; actor; Tom Jones, pop singer.

Today's Cryptogram clue: I equals A

The Cryptogram is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Still a long way to go, Baby

CALGARY (CP) — A report prepared by the personnel department says the stereotype of women working in clerical-secretarial positions is "firmly entrenched" among the city's 6,200 permanent employees.

The study says: "Women occupy traditional clerical and secretarial positions, with very few women occupying what we often refer to as male-oriented jobs."

"The 59 women within the management-exempt (non-union) group were represented again in lower salary ranges. These positions were mostly senior clerical and secretarial positions, such as commissioners' secretaries."

"Men believe women have additional skills (dexterity) which make them better suited to jobs such as typists."

"Management-exempt positions range from managerial to professional positions. The analysis revealed that there were definite wage differences between male and female incumbents, typically in the order of $1,000."

Clive Chalkley, personnel director, said: "The report reflects largely, attitudinal problems—among males and females, and management staff."

"You have to work on people's attitudes and awareness, and make sure women do get assistance so they're more promotable."

STICK TO TRADITION
An attitude revealed by the study was that 55 per cent of men and 26 per cent of women think traditionally female jobs are most appropriate for women.

"All respondents indicated strongly that men do not prefer to work for a woman and that men are given priority for managerial positions," said the report.

Males and managers believe women have a higher turnover rate, are more often absent from their jobs and should be primarily responsible for sick off-spring.

When it comes to consideration for advancement "only males and managers believe that opportunities are equal."

Interviews with 15 women in senior positions revealed that the idea that a woman can compete on the same level with a man is still considered a phenomenon by many men.

All the women felt that if they were placed in the same situation as a man they should do comparable work.

"Management, it often seems, expects lower performance from a female. Therefore, females are slotted into position of less responsibility."

HE'LL STAND ON GUARD

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP) — Rupert Soames, 19, the grandson of Sir Winston Churchill, is working as a security guard for the summer at this booming oil-sands town in northeastern Alberta.

ENO IS A WINNER
MILL VILLAGE, N.S. (CP) — An earthworm named Eno the Third won the eighth annual worm race at the Mill Village consolidated school. Eno was entered in the 60-centimetre race by Norma Johnson, a Grade 7 student who selected Eno from several worms she used in trial runs during "spring training."

VANDALISM IS UP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vandalism of Vancouver boulevards and tree trees is "getting away out of hand," said Fred Hearfield, park board supervisor of boulevard trees. He said about 200 trees across the city must be replaced, at a cost of about $20,000.

HE WAS REIMBURSED
VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver police reimbursed a man who paid $1,375 for four brass rings sold at a police auction that were advertised as being silver and gold. To ensure that the problem doesn't happen again, the rings, appraised at about $5 each, will be destroyed.
